

Mr. John Owusu-Afriyie, Programme Manager, Research and Macroeconomic Management Department.

Mr. John Owusu-Afriyie is a Ghanaian, born on 27th March, 1984. He obtained his Bachelor of Arts Degree (Economics with Russian Language) in 2008 from the University of Ghana, Legon. In 2012, he obtained his Master of Philosophy Degree in Economics from the same university. He also studied the Craft of Scholarly Writing at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies (Geneva, Switzerland). Currently, he is pursuing a PhD in Development Economics (In his final year) at the University of Ghana, in collaboration with the United Nations University-World Institute for Development Economics Research (UNU-WIDER).

Until his appointment as a Programme Manager at the Department of Research and Macroeconomic Management, WAIFEM, he had worked with the School of Adult and Distance Education, University of Ghana, as an Economic Tutor for 8 years. He tutored Macroeconomics, Applied Statistics for Economists, International Trade Theory and Practice, and Microeconomics at the Distance Education Unit. He had also acquired profound experience in Economic research. Currently, he has a number of publications and working papers to his credit. His areas of specialization are Foreign Direct Investment, Poverty and Inequality, Labour Market Outcomes and Institutions, Economic Development and Growth, Entrepreneurship, Education and Environmental Economics. His recent publication on the topic, Effect of Chinese FDI on Economic Growth in Africa, won him the 2018 Emerald Literati Award (Highly Commended Paper Category). In addition, John had been a researcher on international research projects by African Economic Research Consortium (AERC), International Growth Centre (IGC) and African Centre for Inequality Research (ACEIR).

He is a current member of the African African Economic Research Consortium (AERC) and a former member of the African Econometric Society (AES).

Email: jowusu-afriyie@waifem-cbp.org